The Global Brake Safety Council is proud to announce that a new member has joined the team. Charles Greening is the president of Greening Associates, Inc./Greening Testing Laboratories, Inc., an independent testing facility and test system manufacturing and consulting firm. Charles has over 35 years testing experience in the areas of brakes, transmissions, and friction materials, and for the last 30 years has been directly involved in test conception, methodology, data analysis, and equipment design and operation. Asked why he chose to join the GBSC, Charles stated: "When it comes to brakes, safety is paramount. I am interested in developing objective, vehicle relevant standards for replacement brake components, assuring the end-user that the service parts installed on their car or truck meet the minimum requirements in keeping with those demanded of the original vehicle manufacturer."
